OK! HOT STORY

AS BRUCE JENNER, SHE SPENT YEARS LIVING IN THE KARDASHIANS' ENORMOUS SHADOW. NOW, HAVING REVEALED HERSELF TO THE WORLD, A TRIUMPHANT CAITLYN JENNER IS CLAIMING HER SHARE OF THE SPOTLIGHT

Caitlyn's millions of fans can't wait to tune in to her new reality show, I Am Cait.

CAITLYN'S REVENGE

For decades, Caitlyn Jenner hid her true nature. As Bruce, she won an Olympic gold medal and became an in-demand motivational speaker, but, she says, “I’d walk off that stage and I’d feel like a liar.” Now, the 65-year-old reality star has finally become the person that she long dreamed of being — the person she always was inside — and she’s never been happier. “She was miserable for so many years,” a close friend reports. “She spent so much time in the Kardashians’ shadow. So debuting her new self and receiving such a huge swell of support was cathartic and really satisfying. She’s been ready to shine for a long time.”

MEETING AN ADORING PUBLIC

As Bruce, Caitlyn was often regarded with a mixture of bemusement and pity. But as the person she always wanted to be, she’s been embraced as nothing short of heroic. (At the July 15 ESPYs, ESPN’s annual sports awards ceremony, Caitlyn will accept the Arthur Ashe Courage Award, given to an athlete who exemplifies triumph over adversity.) Her new Twitter account broke a record by garnering 1 million followers in just four hours, and even President Obama — the previous record holder — praised her, tweeting, “It takes courage to share your story.”

“Caitlyn can’t believe the degree of support she’s received,” the friend says. “She’s endured so much heartbreak, and the people in her life who knew what she was going through, like Kris Jenner, never showed her much sympathy. So all this positivity from strangers has really affected her emotionally.”

AS GLAM AS SHE WANTS TO BE

Caitlyn is also relishing the chance to be as fabulous as the Kardashians, at last. Her friend says, “She’s having a great time experimenting with makeup tricks, like contouring,” a technique originally made famous by former stepdaughter Kim Kardashian. “She’s hired a full-time glam squad and a coach who’s teaching her the art of femininity, including things like how to walk in heels and pose on the red carpet.”

A BETTER MOM THAN DAD

Her newly honest lifestyle has also allowed Caitlyn to reconnect with her older children, from whom she had become somewhat estranged. Her daughter Cassandra

has noted that she’s “happier and more appreciative of her family.” The friend concurs: “She’s getting closer with the boys too. Her whole outlook has changed.”

BIGGER THAN THE KARDASHIANS

Caitlyn’s transformation even overshadowed the announcement of Kim’s pregnancy, which would ordinarily have been headline news. People are so intrigued, an insider says that Caitlyn’s new series is expected to eclipse Keeping Up With the Kardashians in popularity, while her public speaking fees are expected to skyrocket. If a book deal and endorsements come through — including a projected contract with MAC cosmetics, whose maxim is “All ages, all races, all sexes” — Caitlyn’s future earnings could top $500 million.

FREE OF KRIS

Needless to say, that doesn’t thrill Caitlyn’s ex. But she no longer has to worry about what Kris thinks. Caitlyn herself admits, “A lot of times, [Kris] wasn’t very nice. People would see how I got mistreated.”

“She’s allowing herself to express her true feelings, good and bad,” the source explains. “She could never be herself when she was with Kris.

But now that she’s in charge of her own life, it’s the best revenge.” OK!

“WHEN SHE WAS WITH KRIS, CAITLYN FELT POWERLESS. TODAY, SHE’S THE ONE IN CONTROL.”

THE LATEST CELEB NEWS

INSIDER

After months of on-set drama, a source tells OK! that Johnny returned to Australia on June 1 with a brand-new attitude and is an absolute pleasure to work with.

JOHNNY BACK ON BOARD!

Between Johnny Depp's injury and highly publicized canine legal woes (he was threatened with jail for failing to declare his dogs in Australia airport customs), the Pirates of the Caribbean crew seemed about ready to see their erratic star walk the plank. However, a source reveals that after his most recent trip to the U.S. to celebrate daughter Lily Rose's birthday, Johnny has returned Down Under a changed man. "Johnny has made a major adjustment since arriving back on set," shares the insider. "He made it a point to come in early and apologized to everyone for his behavior over the past couple of months. The crew members were astonished. It's like he's a completely different person."

It's no secret that Johnny had been causing quite a ruckus while filming the Disney franchise's latest installment. In addition to his hand injury — allegedly the result of his hitting a glass door while under the influence — disrupting production for nearly a month, Johnny's flaky on-set behavior and nonstop arguments with new wife Amber Heard were becoming major issues for everyone affiliated with the project. But the actor's attitude overhaul seems to indicate that those problems are very much in the past.

"It's nice to see that Johnny is feeling better," says the insider "He's met with fans to take photos and sign autographs and is even planning to visit a local children's hospital dressed as Captain Jack Sparrow. I'm not sure who gave him a proper talking-to, but he's definitely received the wake-up call that he desperately needed!" Here's hoping the shoot will be nothing but smooth sailing from here on out.

KIM OFF RHOBH

Following the news that Kim Richards is back in rehab, insiders reveal that the troubled reality star may also be out of a paycheck. With rumors swirling that her sister Kyle is getting the axe, a source connected to The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills claims Kim will not be returning as well. But the demotion could be good news when it comes to Kim's recovery. "The show helped her financially, but it came with a lot of temptation to drink," says a source. "Her family is glad she won't have to deal with that while she's still in a fragile state."

Kim's family is said to be relieved she's in rehab after flying off the rails at her daughter Brooke's May 23 wedding.

JONAH HEAVIER THAN EVER

Jonah lost an estimated 40 pounds in 2011 with the help of a nutritionist.

Jonah Hill has gone from Superbad to supersize! While his weight has fluctuated over the years, on May 12 the actor emerged looking dangerously overweight on the set of his new comedy Arms and the Dudes in Miami. "Jonah is well over 300 pounds and just 5'7". He's putting an enormous amount of strain on his joints," a source tells OK!.

"He used to go to the gym regularly, but now he gets winded just walking down the street." But even though everyone around the star has been urging him to get help, the insider believes he won't change his eating habits until he hits rock bottom. "Jonah gets acting jobs whether he's skinny or fat, and since he hasn't had any health scares, he doesn't see the need for a change right now."

"The difference between Amal's looks on the red carpet and off can be night and day," says the source. "She's changing that."

AMAL HIRES A STYLIST

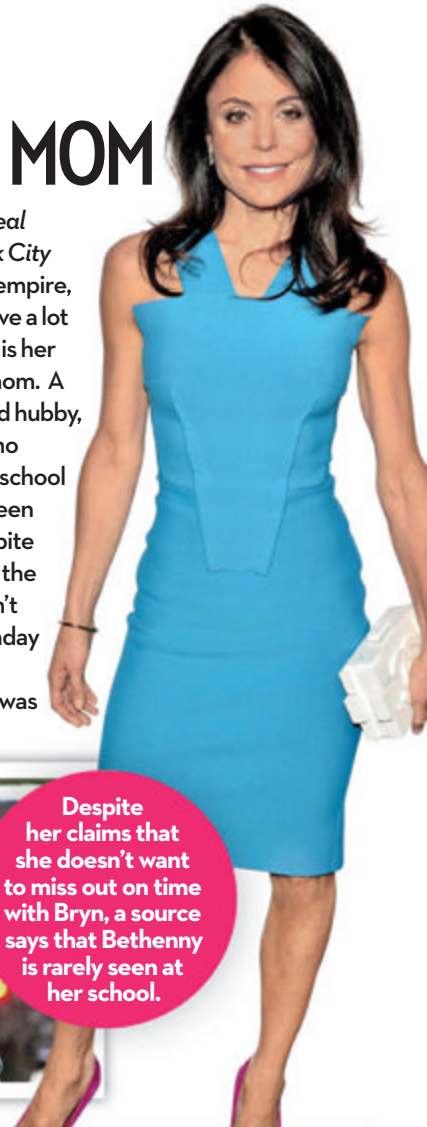

She may have learned how to rock a red carpet, but with the paparazzi on her trail 24/7, Amal Clooney is ready to up her street style game. The willowy human rights lawyer has reportedly hired a covert glam team to upgrade her everyday look. "Left to her own devices, Amal can be a hot mess," dishes an insider. "She's terrible at mixing textures and patterns, and she wears cheesy newsboy caps and low-rise jeans that haven't been fashionable since the early 2000s." So, at George's suggestion, Amal agreed to get a little help. "She hired an ex-Vogue staffer as a style and media consultant," reveals the insider. Now the team is set on helping Amal hone her individual style — which George once called "eccentric" — and hit the sweet spot between sexy and smart. "They recommended she pose with eyes down and head up, a look that was perfected by Princess Diana," says the source. "And if she's going to a business lunch, always carry a binder. It's subtle but effective." Sounds like Amal's gone Hollywood!

BETHENNY PART-TIME MOM

Between shooting The Real Housewives of New York City and running a business empire, Bethenny Frankel doesn't leave a lot of time for what she's claimed is her most important job: being a mom. A source says that her estranged hubby, Jason Hoppy, is the parent who takes their daughter, Bryn, to school and that Bethenny is "rarely seen at drop-off." Additionally, despite having $22 million in the bank, the source reveals, Bethenny didn't splash out for Bryn's fifth birthday last month, telling OK!, "The party was mediocre — no one was impressed." Burn!

Despite her claims that she doesn't want to miss out on time with Bryn, a source says that Bethenny is rarely seen at her school.

REHAB FOR ROB

With the headlines fixed on Caitlyn Jenner's big debut and his sister Kim's announcement of baby number two, an insider says Rob Kardashian is quietly turning his life around. The reclusive reality star will reportedly enter a rehab facility in Delmar Beach, Fla., this month to deal with an addiction to alcohol and painkillers. "Following a family intervention, Rob realized it was finally time to whip himself into shape, mentally and physically," reveals the insider. In fact, Rob has even met with a doctor to discuss gastric bypass surgery to deal with his weight gain. "He's serious about getting healthy," adds the source. We're rooting for you, Rob!

COUPLES NEWS

The happy couple showed off Iggy's $500,000 custom, 10.43-carat engagement ring on Instagram.

Iggy & Nick

ENGAGED!

On June 1, Iggy Azalea threw Nick Young a carnival-themed 30th birthday party in Malibu, complete with a Ferris wheel, slide, bounce area, games and a dance floor. But as they celebrated with friends, Nick turned it into a totally different kind of party — by dropping to one knee to propose!

It was quite a positive turn of events just three days after the Australian rapper, 25, abruptly canceled her Great Escape Tour, claiming she'd had a "creative change of heart."

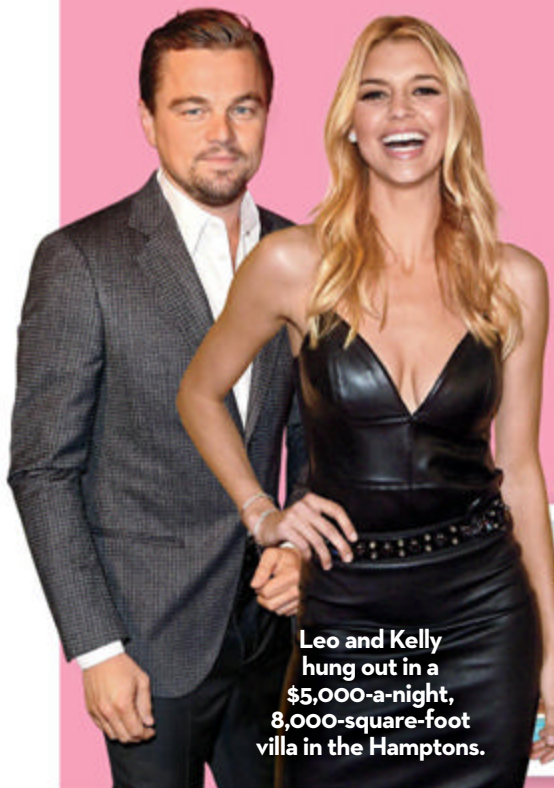

But a source says the developments are very much connected. "Nick made it very clear that if he and Iggy were going to marry, he wanted her to scale back on work," the insider dishes. "Now her friends are buzzing that the real reason for the cancelation and the engagement is that Iggy's pregnant."

Apparently, her pals are suspicious because Iggy has been turning down drinks and complaining about being exhausted — a sentiment she echoed in her official statement about the tour: "I need a break from everything to just enjoy what I worked so hard for."

But the source says, pregnant or not, Iggy was also determined to prove to her NBA star beau that they should take the next step. "Nick wants a traditional wife, who likes to cook and be home to attend to the family's needs," the insider says, adding that Iggy feared he'd walk away if she went on the road. "She wasn't willing to gamble." And since her announcement, the source adds, Iggy's not looking back: "She'd take Nick over the tour any day."

Leo's NEW GIRL

Leo and Kelly hung out in a $5,000-a-night, 8,000-square-foot villa in the Hamptons.

Kelly Rohrbach may be Sports Illustrated's "Rookie of the Year" — but she's already a pro at cozying up to one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, Leonardo DiCaprio. The duo were first spotted at 1Oak in L.A. in April. Then, on May 29, 40-year-old Leo whisked the aspiring actress, 25, away for a long weekend in the Hamptons, where they partied with pals before returning to NYC to flirt the night away at a CFDA Awards afterparty. While Kelly's obviously just Leo's type (that is, a model), sources say she could have real staying power: The sporty Georgetown grad, who played on the school's golf team, may have the big brains and baller skills to keep him on his toes!

Katie & Jamie HEATING UP

After her split from Tom Cruise in 2012, Katie Holmes spent years avoiding the dating scene, but it looks like she's finally getting serious with Jamie Foxx, 47. "Katie is at Jamie's house a few times a week, and she couldn't look happier when she drives away," a local in Jamie's Hidden Valley, Calif., neighborhood reports. The 36-year-old actress' recent glowing appearances on the red carpet seem to confirm that she has new love in her life. But the pair will stay under the radar for now. "Suri is Katie's top priority, which Jamie totally respects," the source says. "So they're content to wait for the right time to go public."

In March, the couple were seen holding hands.

Nicky's ROYAL WEDDING

Friends say Nicky Hilton has long considered her family to be American royalty, so it's only fitting that her July 10 wedding to James Rothschild will take place at Prince William and Duchess Kate's London doorstep — Kensington Palace! The event locale, a part of the grounds known as The Orangery, hosts civil ceremonies for couples who can afford the booking fee: about $20,000, not including catering, flowers and music. Of course, cost is no concern for the Hilton hotels heir, 31, and her 30-year-old beloved, a London-based banking scion she met in 2011. "She's determined to have the best of everything," an insider says. "The guest list is incredibly exclusive." Who knows, maybe Queen Elizabeth herself will hit the dance floor!

Prior to their 2014 engagement, James secretly flew from the U.K. to L.A. to ask Nicky's parents for permission to propose!

Jen LEANING ON HER EX

As Jennifer Garner's marriage to Ben Affleck, 42, crumbles, she's finding support in an unlikely source — her ex Michael Vartan, 46, who's also in the midst of an ugly split from his wife of three years. Michael and Jen, 43, who met on the set of Alias, "supported each other through their early days of fame," an insider says. "Since finding out she and Ben are on the rocks, he's been reaching out more, and she's really been enjoying the walk down memory lane." While the two are merely talking, the insider notes that the timing is interesting — and "their chemistry back in the day was off the charts."

Alias costars Michael and Jen dated from 2003 to 2004.

Bradley and Irina were first spotted together in April.

Irina BRADLEY'S MOM NOT A FAN

When Bradley Cooper's mom doesn't approve of his girlfriend, it's pretty awkward, considering she's also his roommate. So Irina Shayk had better tread carefully! Bradley, 40, split from Suki Waterhouse, 23, in March and was spotted with Irina, 29, a month later — too soon for mom Gloria Campano's liking. "She doesn't think the relationship has legs," a source says. "Bradley hates to upset her, so he might break it off." Sheesh, Bradley, stick up for yourself!

Josh & Fergie ADOPTING!

His CBS show Battle Creek has been canceled, but a source says Josh Duhamel thinks it's a "blessing in disguise," because he'll soon have his hands full with baby number two. The hands-on dad and his wife, Fergie, 40, have reportedly started the process of adopting a sibling for their 21-month old son, Axl. "They think it's the right time to expand their family," the source says. In February the 42-year-old actor admitted scheduling was an issue. "It's about figuring out when it's going to happen," he said. No time like the present!

"They want to spend every free moment together," a source says.

Cam & Benji

PACKING ON LOVE POUNDS

Cameron Diaz and Benji Madden are finally getting a handle on love — and gaining some love handles in the process! The couple, who married in January, have worked through an initial rough patch and have bonded over cooking together. An insider says Cam, 42, loves spoiling Benji, 36. "She's always making him a cake or cookies," the source says, adding that neither of them cares that they've put on weight. "Benji makes Cam feel sexy and beautiful."

"She's in this horrible limbo," a source says.

Jen's LONELY DAYS

Lately, if Jennifer Aniston's out and about, she's hanging with gal pals in Los Angeles — and her fiancé, Justin Theroux, 43, is nowhere to be found. While the actor-writer stays busy with Zoolander 2 in Italy and The Leftovers in Austin, Texas, Jen, 46, seems more solitary than ever. "He's never around," a source says. "Jen's gone from wedding planning to feeling totally alone. Things are so strained, she refuses to visit him."

Will & Kate

Moving to the US

THE BRITISH ARE COMING: THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF CAMBRIDGE PLAN TO SUMMER IN THE HAMPTONS!

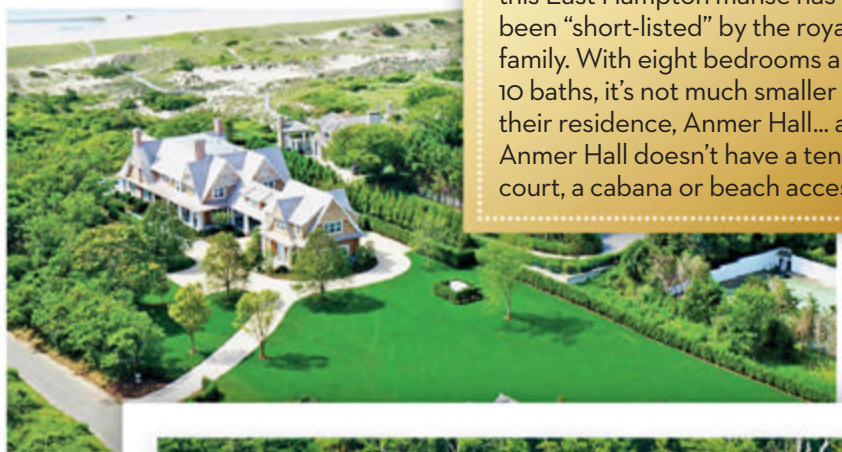

As summer approaches, families across the United States are planning their beach getaways. And it seems commoners aren't the only ones hoping to spend at least some part of the sunny season on America's shores: A palace source reports that a few very key members of the British royal family are mulling a (part-time) move to the old U.S. of A.!

Yes, Prince William and his wife, Duchess Kate, are looking to rent a large estate on the coast of Long Island, and they plan to be settled by July. The move may seem surprising, but the source says that it's something the couple have secretly desired for a very long time. "They've always wanted to have a home somewhere abroad and have considered everything from Australia to certain small European islands." But, since welcoming baby Charlotte in early May, the source reports, they've focused and finally settled on the Hamptons. "They've sent one of their

Long Island princess!

THEY'RE HOUSE HUNTING!

$24.5 MILLION This 10-bedroom, 12-bathroom home on New York's Shelter Island is another hot contender. Boasting a private beach, theater and nightclub, it's the perfect place to kick back, far away from prying eyes!

“THEY KNOW THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WILL WELCOME THEM WITH OPEN ARMS”

advisors over to consult with real estate brokers, and they've narrowed the search down to a few different properties. Now they're just going through the formalities.”

A DIFFERENT WAY OF LIFE

The family-friendly vibe of the tony beach community was a key factor in the royals' decision. William, 32, and Kate, 33, “love the idea of exposing their little ones to a different way of life,” the source explains. “The pressures of being a royal can be very stressful for a young family, and William and Kate want George and Charlotte to have a fun, varied upbringing.” It's unusual for an heir to the British throne to grow up outside of England, of course, but not entirely unprecedented: George II, who ruled from 1727–1760, was born and raised in Germany.

But Wills and Kate weren't thinking of some 18th-century king when they made their decision; instead, the source says, they were inspired by Kate's own relatively normal childhood, as well as the example of William's beloved late mother, Princess Diana. “Diana used to sit down with William and show him photographs of her travels, and she'd point out the exotic places she went on maps,” the source says. “She'd tell him that he should never settle for a life inside the palace walls, and that he must experience all that the world has to offer.” Now it seems that William has taken his mother's advice — and, more than that, he plans to pass it on to his own children.

RILING UP THE ROYAL FAMILY

William's surviving parent, Prince Charles, however, is not thrilled about

A PRINCE ACROSS THE POND

One benefit of summering Stateside? It will give future king George a chance to kick off his knee socks and experience a normal, American-style childhood. Not only will the almost-2-year-old prince get to experience classic New York pizza — as the source says, “Pizza was one of William's favorite foods as a kid, and he can't wait to take his son for his first slice” — he'll also get the chance to swap his knickers and jumpers for sweatshirts and baseball caps. Plus: playdates! “George doesn't have much of a chance to play with other kids at the palace,” the source says, “so they're hoping to organize a few playdates, probably with other celebrity kids, in the U.S.”

his son's wanderlust. Nor is Wills' grandmother, Queen Elizabeth, particularly enthusiastic about the plan: "The Queen is not happy at all, and that's putting it mildly," the source says. "She and William have a very close bond, and while she supports almost everything that he chooses to do, she has all but forbidden this move, which she finds very low-class."

And for once it seems that the Windsors and the Middletons, so often at odds, are seeing eye to eye! "Carole Middleton broke down and cried when Kate said that they wanted to spend their summer in the U.S. She said she couldn't bear to be apart from the children."

One might wonder if this kind of reaction is the sort of thing that inspired the couple to start eyeing houses across the Atlantic in the first place, but William and Kate have placated their families by pointing out that whichever Hamptons spread they choose, it will be just a holiday home. And they've reassured Carole by promising her that there will be plenty of room for her in the new residence. "She's coming to terms with it," the source says, "but she's still upset."

Happily, though, not everyone in the couple's life is against the move: William's brother, Harry, "is excited to have another place to stay in America," the source says. And their pal David Beckham strongly encouraged the extended vacation. "He told William that moving to America was the best thing that he and Victoria ever did. He's been very firm, telling William to follow his heart and do what he believes is best for Kate and the children."

SAFE AND SOUND

Of course, security is also a big concern for the royal family, and their safety is being taken into very serious consideration as they evaluate their options. "It's been a tense few months," the source notes, "particularly with the birth of Princess Charlotte. Their team was incredibly worried about an incident at the hospital, which is why Kate stayed for such a short time."

But the couple have identified no shortage of properties in the Hamptons

Meet the Neighbors

While it's not certain which Long Island 'hood the royals will be settling in, one thing is certain: There will be plenty of high-profile neighbors with whom to mix and mingle — which is perfect, as a source says Kate is "very excited" to make new celeb friends. Among the candidates are Scarlett Johansson (who has a baby not much older than Charlotte!), fellow Brit Sir Paul McCartney, director Steven Spielberg and Hamptons mainstays Sarah Jessica Parker and Matthew Broderick. But Kate's most excited about Gwyneth Paltrow: "She's a huge fan and would love to spend some time with her," the source reports.

Will and Kate could hobnob with Amagansett residents Scarlett, SJP and Matthew, and Gwyneth.

that will enable them to feel comfortable. "They think that America is the safest place for them, outside of the palace," the source notes. "They feel this is a smart decision."

Most important, though, is that they expect to have a good time! "They're looking for a home that will be large enough to easily accommodate their staff and visitors, but they also want to make sure it has expansive grounds and beach access so that George and Charlotte will be able to enjoy the sea and sunshine," the source says. "They're tucked away from the wind and the cold so many months a year, so William and Kate want them to get out and experience the sea breeze and sand. They want George, in particular, to forget he's a royal, so he can just be a normal little kid."

OK!

Will and Kate are guaranteed to love the U.S. almost as much as the U.S. loves them.

FOLLOWING
CLUB APPEARANCE,
SCOTT DISICK IS TERRIFIED THAT HE COULD BE EXPECTING
ANOTHER BABY – AND
NOT WITH KOURTNEY
KARDASHIAN

“Scott’s going to have a hard time explaining this to Kourtney,” says a source. “It could break them up for good.”

SCOTT'S LOVE CH ANXIETY

Between Scott Disick's pill-and-booze benders and his made-for-TV rage problem — punching a mirror in 2010 was barely the tip of the iceberg — the Keeping Up with the Kardashians star has racked up his share of bad-boyfriend offenses. But his latest lapse in judgment may prove to be his worst transgression yet.

Inside sources allege that after making an Arizona club appearance in January, Scott, 32, cheated on Kourtney Kardashian, 36, his girlfriend of eight years and the mother of his three kids, Mason, 5, Penelope, 2, and Reign, 5 months.

Though rumors of Scott cheating are hardly new, sources say that ever since this particular romp — with a woman he met at the El Hefe club in Scottsdale — Scott's been terrified that minutes at the venue, Scott invited his newly recruited harem back to his suite at the W Hotel in Scottsdale. "Scott's security confiscated all the girls' phones before they entered his room so no one could document anything," says the insider. After drinking and using cocaine for several hours, the girls left — except for Scott's chosen one. But once their fun ended, Scott "started thinking about the consequences," says the insider, "and suddenly he was totally freaking out."

"Lord Disick" managed to find his preferred brand of debauchery — flowing liquor and willing women — in suburban Arizona.

ONE TIME TOO MANY

Turns out, he wasn't spooked enough to keep from hooking up with his

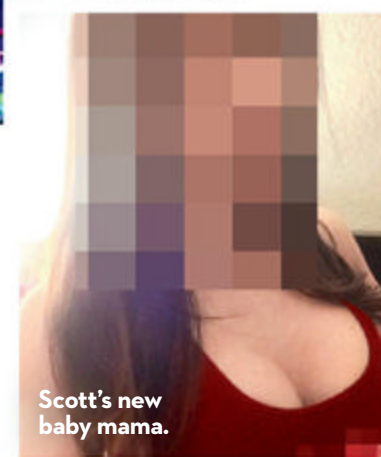

Southwestern crush another time. A source says that in February, Scott returned to Arizona to make an appearance at El Hefe's Tempe location. Never one to resist an impulse, he texted his fling for another hotel rendezvous.

"They're still in contact," says the source, who insists that while Kourtney is "very forgiving," Scott's getting a woman pregnant would be the end of their relationship — not to mention his piece of the Kardashian pie.

"Kourtney's not stupid," says another insider. "She's aware of Scott's partying and having girls around all the time, but there's a limit to what she'll put up with. She's not naive enough to think he hasn't cheated, but her worst nightmare is Scott getting some random girl pregnant. When Kourtney finds out what happened in Arizona, it may well be the end of their relationship — and Scott's current relationship with his kids." OK!

WILD

their night of reportedly unprotected sex could have resulted in a pregnancy.

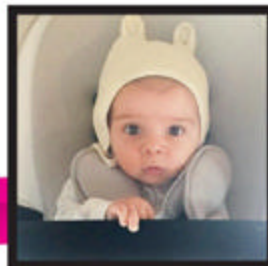

"The day after it happened, Scott texted her and asked if she was on the Pill," says an insider. "He was nervous about what might come of that night."

A LOT TO LOSE

Anxious though he was after the fact, the insider reveals that Scott had been working toward the fling all night. The source explains: "Scott met a bunch of girls at the club. He was openly flirting, and everyone with him was drinking. They all got pretty hammered." After spending a mere 30

ON THEIR OWN?

Though long-suffering Kourtney is as forgiving as she is fertile, sources say Scott's already on very thin ice with her. "Kourtney's tried to make Scott stay in rehab time and time again, but he always just does what he feels like, whenever he feels like it," says a source. "Kourtney has more than enough money to take care of their children by herself — and considering how many chances she's given Scott, he should be worried about finally pushing her over the edge."

ON THE ROAD TO REHAB

Jessica Simpson has it all: A successful fashion brand; two cherubic tots (Maxwell, 3, and Ace, 23 months); a hard-won figure following years of Weight Watchers dieting; and finally, after a very public divorce from Nick Lachey, marital bliss with former football pro Eric Johnson—which she's effusively described as “addicting,” with “a level of love that has reached the highest of highs.”

But sources say that while Jessica, 34, has plenty of reason to pop bottles and toast her good fortune, she's lately taken her celebrating to a dangerous extreme — one that could swiftly land her in rehab. “Jessica goes on these massive booze binges and works her way through too many cocktails,” says a close source. “The biggest worry is that she is incapable of slowing down.”

BAD HABITS

Such was the scenario on June 2, when Jess and Eric joined Ashlee Simpson and her husband, Evan Ross, to hear Evan's new music at Hollywood's Sayers Club.

"Jessica looked like she was having the most fun of everyone as she downed vodka cocktails," says a witness, adding, "She seemed a little on the sloppy side, but she was a happy drunk. Eric had a couple drinks but seemed more concerned about taking care of her."

By the time Jess headed outside to a waiting SUV, Eric had to physically support his wobbling wife all the way to the passenger seat. "Eric's lost count of the number of occasions he's had to help Jess to a car and then carry her through the door when they get home," says the source. "She winds up embarrassing herself and then not remembering anything about the night before."

PARTY'S OVER

Concern for Jessica's drinking ramped up last year after her coed bachelorette party, when she appeared drunk and disheveled — and once again wobbly — on her way out of nightclub Warwick in L.A. And this past March, Jessica gave an erratic red carpet interview that was peppered with delayed reactions and wonky facial expressions and gestures — a fairly obvious sign to many that she had been drinking before the night's events even started. "Jess likes to treat herself to a cocktail before going out," says the source. "Then she'll down two or three glasses of wine before dinner's even served."

Sources also claim that Jess has been taking the ADHD drug Adderall as an appetite suppressant, which has effectively amplified the effects of alcohol on her petite, 5'3" frame. "Adderall is the number-one problem here," says an insider. "It's basically a diet pill for people who don't have ADHD."

And while Jess continues to post idyllic Instagram pics of her towheaded mini-mes and give gushing interviews about the joys of married life, an insider says her after-hours behavior paints a far less glowing picture.

"This kind of partying is a sign that someone is unhappy," says the insider. "Obsessive drinking isn't something most people do as a parent." Adds the first source, "A lot of Jessica's friends think she would benefit from a spell in rehab — before something serious happens." OK!

WEIGHTGATE

Other than Jessica's diet of flowing booze, sources say the Weight Watchers spokesperson isn't consuming much else. "She prefers to use up her calorie allowance on alcohol and then have a few bites of food," says a source. "Her biggest problem is that she's binge drinking on an empty stomach."

BRAVO'S NEWEST HOUSEWIFE DISHES TO OK!
ABOUT THE ACCUSATION HEARD 'ROUND THE O.C.

Meghan Edmonds has emerged from the lioness' den unscathed...mostly.

The newest cast member of The Real Housewives of Orange County was a no-brainer for the show:

Beautiful and wealthy (she recently married former baseball star and current sports announcer Jim Edmonds), she has no qualms about speaking her mind — even when facing off against Vicki Gunvalson, AKA “The O.G. of the O.C.,” who’s been on the show since its 2006 debut and is notoriously hard on newbies.

Vicki is also fiercely protective of on-off boyfriend Brooks Ayers, who’s been accused of lying, cheating and gold digging by various cast members; but Meghan’s accusation may be the most incendiary yet.

“I think he’s faking his diagnosis,” Meghan says of Brooks, who reveals this season that he’s fighting stage three non-Hodgkins lymphoma. “There’s definitely a lot of tension between Vicki and me this season, and there are several reasons — but the main one was that she’s upset I had questions about Brooks’ cancer.” (Vicki calls Meghan’s allegation “disgusting.”) Meghan adds, “I believe the little questions that unfold will intrigue the audience.”

Meghan might not have inserted herself into Brooks’ struggle, had the issue not hit so close to home. While she and hubby Jim normally split time between SoCal and the Midwest, where his work is based, the St. Louis native recently moved to their O.C. residence full-time to set up a home base for Jim’s daughter, Hayley Edmonds, whose mom, Lee Ann Horton (Jim’s first wife) is battling cancer nearby.

“Hayley, who you’ll see a lot on the show, moved into our house because her mother’s sick and undergoing chemotherapy,” Meghan says. “I haven’t talked to Vicki or Brooks since filming ended, but I’m dealing with a woman in my life who’s dying of cancer, and I know it isn’t anything to mess around with. I know that for certain.”

Drew (left and below left) attributes his and Jonathan's success to the fact that "we work our butts off, and we have since we were kids."

EVERYONE'S FLIPPING FOR DREW AND JONATHAN SCOTT — AKA THE PROPERTY BROTHERS — WHOSE ENERGY, LOOKS AND STYLE HAVE MADE THEIR MAKEOVER SHOWS HGTV'S MOST POPULAR PROGRAMS

WONDER TWINNS

identical twins Jonathan and Drew Scott, 37, are a home-renovation dream team, turning wrecks into showplaces on hit TV series like Property Brothers. Their movie-star charisma led them into acting first, with real estate as a sideline; but now the Vancouver natives, who share a house in Las Vegas, have their own production company and do 60 home makeovers a year. With season 3 of Brother vs. Brother underway (Wednesdays at 9 PM ET on HGTV) — “There’s more rivalry,” Drew says, “and dares that are definitely embarrassing for the losers” — the Scotts talk about their special bond, dating and when they need to play therapist.

On your shows, Drew is the real estate agent and Jonathan the contractor and renovator. But don’t you have a broker’s license too, Jonathan? Do you two ever switch roles?

JONATHAN: Drew is so not a contractor in any way — sorry, Drew! It’s true that I got licensed as a broker to do our company’s commercial acquisitions, but Drew heads up all the residential.

DREW: In the beginning, I used to do renovations with Jonathan.

JONATHAN: Like in 1996 or something. Then Drew broke a nail, and it was all downhill for him!

How do you deal with people who change their minds midway through projects?

DREW: The thing we always say is, “I’m not just a real estate agent and Jonathan is not just a contractor; we’re also therapists.” This is the clients’ home and everyone’s emotionally attached, so trying to make them understand what’s realistic is probably the biggest struggle.

JONATHAN: We have to get them to realize that there isn’t just one right way to do something and what’s good for one family is not necessarily going to work for another.

Drew, you’re dating your creative director, Linda Phan. Will there be wedding bells soon?

DREW: We met in 2010 and started dating in 2011. She is amazing, the kind of woman you definitely want to spend your life with. I think there will be announcements coming soon. But don’t pressure me!

Jonathan, you’re divorced and single. What did you learn about yourself from your marriage?

JONATHAN: I just learned not to rush into it. I was young, and you can have two people who are great but not the right fit for each other. Moving forward, I will take my time and look for someone who checks off all the boxes. By the way, I was asked if I would be on The Bachelor, and I said no.

They live together, but they share their lives with others: Jonathan with the Yorkie and Chihuahua he calls “my kids,” and Drew with girlfriend Linda Phan.

Why did you say no?

JONATHAN: I have a hard enough time dating one or two people, let alone 25 or 30. I can’t imagine the logistics involved in entertaining that many women. It’s not my style.

You both started out as actors. Do you want to do more performing?

DREW: Yeah, we still love it. Last year, I starred in a Hallmark movie [The Christmas Parade], and the more acting I can do, the more fun it is. Our production company is focused on unscripted projects right now, but we’re going to expand into the scripted side for film and TV. I like to change it up.

JONATHAN: And what I love about our shows is that we’re not pretending to be anybody else. We’re just being ourselves. Sometimes I’m amazed we get any work done, because we just laugh all day.

BROCCOLI AND CHEDDAR FRITTATA

think of frittatas as a great, noble way to reinvent leftover vegetables," says chef Marc Murphy, who has just released his first cookbook, Season With Authority, and serves as a judge on Food Network's Chopped. The dish is so versatile that it can be served for breakfast, lunch or even dinner, with a side salad. And frittatas are a great vehicle for all kinds of leftovers, not just veggies — Marc says he's even used spaghetti carbonara! So don't be afraid to experiment.

Ingredients

- 11 large egg
- 1 tbsp. olive oil
- 1 small onion, thinly sliced
- 2 cups chopped, cooked broccoli
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- ½ cup coarsely grated Cheddar

Directions

1. Preheat oven to 400° F; position rack in middle.
2. In large bowl, whisk together eggs. Set aside.
3. In 10-inch ovenproof nonstick skillet, heat oil over medium heat until shimmering. Add onion and stir until it begins to soften, about 4 minutes. Add broccoli and stir until warmed through, 2 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.
4. Pour eggs over vegetables, covering evenly. Cook eggs about 4 minutes, gently lifting the cooked edges and pushing them inward and allowing the liquid egg to fill the space. Sprinkle with cheese and transfer pan to oven. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until frittata is golden brown and puffed up. (You want it to be just slightly loose in center.) Transfer frittata to cutting board; slice and serve immediately.

- Book a spray tan two days before you plan on shopping.
- Bring pictures of bathing suits you already own to stores so you can mix and match them with new tops and bottoms later.
- Always look for quality sewing; Pull on straps and tug on seams. Steer clear of swim companies that cut corners.
- The type of elastic used around a leg opening makes a difference. Belusso uses top-of-the-line elastic to give the bottom a "lift."
- Decide whether you want to invest in a complete "look" with a coordinating cover-up.

Tues., June 23, at 10:30 PM ET on Comedy Central

Ever wonder what reality TV — or the Kardashian empire — would have looked like 100 years ago? Here is your chance to find out! This tongue-in-cheek new scripted series follows the lives of the obscenely rich (and equally fame-hungry) Bellacourt family and their many servants in turn-of-the-century Rhode Island. Funnywomen Natasha Leggero and Riki Lindhome (who is half of the comedy-folk music duo Garfunkel and Oates) star as the show's premiere dim-witted socialites, leading an all-star cast that includes Christina Hendricks and Michael Ian Black. Cue black-and-white paparazzi crotch shots!

BLAKE ANDERSON STAR OF DOPE

OK! Q&A

Readers may recognize Blake Anderson as one-third of Comedy Central's hit series Workaholics, but this month the California native will flex his funnybone on the big screen. Blake talked to OK! about playing a well-intentioned drug dealer in the coming-of-age dramedy Dope and why he was so psyched to take on the project.

Dope got such an amazing response at Sundance. What was it like being there to experience it?

It was funny because that was my first time out there, and shortly after our screening someone tells me, “Yo, there’s a bidding war going!” I was like, “Oh, cool,” and sort of went on my way and had a blast. Then later I thought, Is this how easy it’s supposed to be?

Music is a big part of this film. As a fan of hip-hop, was that a big draw for you? Definitely. When Rick [Famuyiwa], the director, was first talking to me about it, we started going off about all the rap we like, especially the '90s stuff. It made the movie such an easy fit for me. Plus, there are some awesome hip-hop artists acting in Dope as well.

The movie's protagonists have an affinity for '90s culture. What was your favorite part about growing up in that era?

I'd have to go with the whole Nickelodeon movement. Everything from the cartoons to Global Guts was about empowering kids. All those shows still hold up.

Workaholics recently finished its fifth season. Do you see many more to come?

Oh, yeah. To make that show from the ground up with two of my best friends (Adam DeVine, Anders Holm) is kind of a dream come true, and we still have a lot of fun and a bunch of good ideas.

Do people freak out when they see the three of you out together?

For sure. If we're in a college town, it's total madness. We're not getting out of a bar without taking seven shots of Jäger.

Don't miss the film-festival favorite Dope, in theaters June 19.
